Background

Community Leadership Organisations

Community Leadership Programs have significant impacts in their communities. A key focus of Community Leadership Australia (CLA) leadership programs is to enhance participants' understanding of key social, economic and environmental challenges facing the community. CLA organisations all have a common ethos of developing wiser community leadership.

More than 90% of our graduates are involved as volunteers in their communities, compared to the national average of approx 22%.

Typically CLA graduates volunteer in a range of ways at substantially elevated levels: more than 90% of our graduates are involved as volunteers in their communities, compared to the national average of approximately 22%. It is conservatively estimated that graduates contribute over $25 million to community organisations and community projects annually. Presently community leadership organisations receive a combined total of approximately $2 million in State Government funding.

Formation of Community Leadership Australia

The impetus to develop a national organisation to support community leadership came originally from Richard Bluck AO, the former Executive Director of Leadership Victoria.

CLA was established as a not-for-profit company limited by guarantee in 2004 and was auspiced by Leadership Victoria for several years. During this period, Richard served as its Chairperson. When Richard retired from Leadership Victoria after 25 years in 2007, his successor did not want to continue to auspice CLA and the company was closed.

Members of CLA continued to meet twice a year at a conference hosted by one of the CLA organisations, and to support each other in many other ways. Dr Sue van Leeuwen, Chief Executive Officer of Leadership Western Australia, acted as the Chairperson of this group, before handing over this role to Dr Niki Vincent, Chief Executive Officer of the Leaders Institute of South Australia, in 2010.

Eventually, it was agreed to re-establish CLA as a not-for-profit company to promote the benefits of community leadership on a national level, to support the development of programs in new regions, and to better support the professional development needs of those involved in community leadership around Australia.

It was also agreed to expand to include the broader Oceania region, with Leadership NZ joining in 2009. In 2013, Community Leadership Australia was formally reborn.

CLA is a growing alliance of Community Leadership Organisations from around Australia and the Pacific region. CLA's members are dedicated to developing wiser leaders for the economic, environmental, social and cultural wellbeing of their communities.

CLA exists to strengthen and promote community leadership; support the development of new programs, share information, program methodology and support the professional development of staff from member organisations.

Vision

Effective leadership; better communities; great outcomes

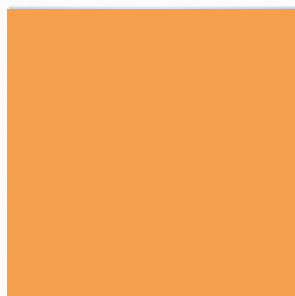

Mission

An alliance that supports, develops, inspires and resources individuals and organisations dedicated to community leadership to create a better world.

Goals:

CLA aims to:

1. Create a cohesive national network of thriving community leadership organisations (CLOs) in metropolitan, regional, rural and remote areas.
 - 1.1 Create and deliver a program of support to members that develops and shares wisdom and good practice in community leadership.
 - 1.2 Create and implement a framework for integrated support systems and national operational leverage.
 - 1.3 Foster the development of new CLOs or new programs of CLOs to address identified geographic or demographic gaps.
2. Build the influence of Community Leadership.
 - 2.1 Develop and implement a strategy to inform key influencers about the value of community leadership programs and their contribution to their communities.
 - 2.2 Develop and deliver consistent messages on community leadership to communities.
 - 2.3 Develop and implement a methodology to measure the impact of Community Leadership.
3. Develop CLA as a sustainable, effective organisation.
 - 3.1 Seek government, corporate and philanthropic funding.
 - 3.2 Build membership base and contributions from members.
 - 3.3 Create an effective national secretariat.

Membership

Become a member

Angela Driver, the General Manager of Tasmanian Leaders, is the current Chair of CLA and can be contacted on angela.driver@tasmanianleaders.org.au or phone 0417 379 703.

Alternatively, Julie Slater, Executive Office Community Leadership Loddon Murray, manages the communication and finances for CLA and can be contacted via executive@cilm.org.au or 03 5498 3270.

Investment

Benefits

CLA members become key stakeholders in a powerful and evolving community of practice that provides tangible benefits to their organisations in achieving their strategic objectives.

Through its national conferences (held twice a year) and its online forum, CLA members:

- Act as a conduit between business, government and the broader community to work collectively to contribute to the community, to share its expertise and values and help diversify and strengthen the leadership agenda within local communities.
- Gain access to:
 - A cross-section of community leadership professionals from some of the most significant leadership organisations in Australia.
 - Key decision-makers, politicians and industry peers.
 - Significant and leading-edge research and development being undertaken by our diverse membership.
- Offer professional development through sharing programming, alumni development and organisational best practices.
- Create opportunity to discuss other leading edge initiatives and opportunities to expand the impact of member organisations' work.

Outcomes

CLA participation:

- Decreases the learning curve of new CEOs, program leaders and other program staff
- Provides opportunities for creativity and innovation in the field
- Allows rapid trouble-shooting and problem-solving with peers
- Empowers organisations to respond more rapidly and effectively to the needs of stakeholders
- Reduces rework and prevents 'reinvention of the wheel', through sharing and understanding the challenges, failures and successes experienced in other programs/organisations
- Spawns new ideas for programs and services.

Website & Groupsite

The CLA website is currently under construction and will be launched early 2017. There is also a Twitter account and a LinkedIn group.

Board

The Board exists to advance the objectives of the alliance.

In accordance with the Constitution of CLA, the Board may consist of up to six Directors elected from the membership and six individuals appointed by those elected Directors. All Board directors serve on a pro-bono basis for a term of three years and may seek renewal for one further term.

The establishment of a fully functioning national secretariat is a long term strategic objective for the organization. However, until such time as this is achieved the alliance is without the benefit of a dedicated staff. As such, Board members will be required to be task driven as well as governance focused.

It is intended that the Board reflect the geographical diversity of CLA member organisations. Board members must be available to meet via teleconference for at least one hour, once per month during business hours in addition to up to four further hours for the pursuit of relevant tasks.

Board meetings are also held once during each Community Leadership Australia conferences.

Directors must be familiar with the strategic plans for the alliance, the Constitution of Community Leadership Australia, as well as the provisions of the Corporations Act 2001 relevant to a company limited by guarantee.

A Directors' report is produced annually by the Board Chair.
